New K-12 Public School Campus

Design-Build of modern school campus

This $65 million Design-Build project called for U.W. Marx to construct a modern 288,000 s/f K-12 campus for the City School District of Rensselaer. The project included constructing an access road from 10th Street in the city.

The new school features all elements of a modern educational campus. The facility includes networked classrooms, auditoriums, gymnasiums, athletic fields, parking areas, modern science labs, library, and extensive food service facilities. The new school also provides ample space for administrative offices, faculty work areas and support personnel. An addition to the western wing of the campus was constructed to house a BOCES facility.

The NYSERDA NY Energy Smart® New Construction Program (NCP) awarded the District the maximum project incentive of $169,500 based on a system evaluation by the Science Applications International Corporation (SAIC).

"U.W. Marx worked with the District in all aspects of the development and construction of this new (288,000 sf) campus... they have been steadfast in communicating with all parties involved...(and) have worked diligently to keep the project on time and up to the highest standards of construction."

The District highly recommends U.W. Marx to any organization engaging in any type of project."

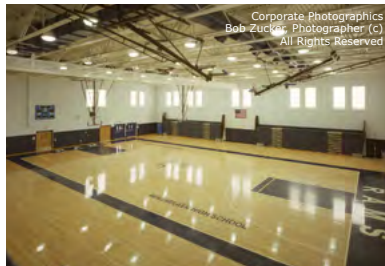

Mr. Gordon F. Reynolds, Superintendent of Schools (retired)
